

HOW JWVG WORKS:

- ➔ Flexible, community-based program designed to meet the unique needs of West Virginia's students.
- ➔ Operates in middle schools, high schools & as an out-of-school option for young adults.
- ➔ A caring program specialist guides & connects students every day to local employers, education providers & community partners.
- ➔ Emphasizes goal-setting, career exploration, work-based learning, community service and direct job & education placement.
- ➔ Participants continue in a follow-up mentorship phase upon completion, receiving ongoing guidance and support.
- ➔ JWVG's data-driven approach delivers proven outcomes for individuals and communities alike.

OUR MISSION

Jobs for WV's Graduates (JWVG) empowers West Virginia's youth and young adults to reach their full potential by supporting academic achievement, personal growth, and career readiness. Through education, mentoring and strong community partnerships, JWVG equips participants with the life and employability skills needed for long-term success while strengthening the communities they live and work in.

SUCCESS STORIES: WHERE ARE THEY NOW?

JASMINE OOTEN

After graduating from Logan High School, Jasmine obtained her phlebotomist's license & now works at Boone Memorial Health, with plans to further her education & obtain her nursing degree – a path she attributes to the opportunities made available through JWVG.

KENNETH POWELL

JWVG Career Association President Kenneth Powell, from Mount View High School, credits JWVG for his success. He is a sophomore at Concord University, a member of the Esports team and is studying multimedia productions. He is a Bonner Scholar who continually makes the Dean's List and has been awarded for perfect attendance.

ANNA HOLSTEIN

Anna is a junior at Marshall University studying advertising and public relations and is active as an SGA secretary, cheerleader, radio contributor and award-winning J-School student. She credits her success to the mentorship she received through JWVG at Logan High School and as an alumni member.
